Reading, writing and speaking

In line with our four 'pillars' of Teaching and Learning, we will support and encourage students and staff to have the highest possible level of written and spoken expression.

The challenge we work towards could be articulated in the question – do our students have the skills of written and spoken expression to achieve and contribute to the following aims?

This may be shown through:

- Provision of specific support for students to develop and sustain a good level of literacy
- Teachers of all subjects role modelling expectations by speaking and writing in appropriate ways
- Encouraging students to use language accurately and appropriately in order to contribute to high expectations and aspirations
- Providing marking and feedback which allows students to develop their written and spoken accuracy and range
- Writing reports and other public documents with the highest level of accuracy and expression
